

COMMISSION IN LUNACY NAMED FOR JANKOWSKI

Man Suspected of Arson Will Be Sent To Norristown

FAMILIAR WITH FIRES

Is Stated That Without Doubt
He Is A Pyro-
maniac

Following a visit by Bucks County Fire Marshal William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville, and Bucks County state policemen, to the office of District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn, Doylestown, yesterday, a commission in lunacy was appointed for John Jankowski, who has been questioned about numerous fires in the county.

Jankowski, who is 48, was taken into custody one week ago, asked about numerous fires which were believed to have been of incendiary origin, and taken to the scenes of the conflagrations. He told many things about the blazes to the authorities, it is stated, but would not confess to starting such.

After being held at Morrisville state police barracks for a time, Jankowski was taken to Doylestown. He had been questioned for the past several days, and officials are certain he knows more of the several fires of recent weeks in lower Bucks than he will admit.

The commission in lunacy yesterday stated that without doubt Jankowski is a pyromaniac, and steps are being taken to place him in the State Hospital for the Insane, at Norristown, where he will be taken shortly.

The fires with which Jankowski seems most familiar are those at the properties of: Elmer Johnson, Tullytown; James King, Bristol Township; Horace Tomlinson, Newtown; Conrad Welmer, Bridgetown; Edward Papendick, Langhorne; Styer Brothers, Woodbourne; Mr. Potashnick, Langhorne; William Woods, near Newtown; John Windishman, near Yardley.

The man told officers that he arranged combustible material in the barns, some to burn fast and others to burn slowly. He denied, however, striking a match to such. At the sites of several of the fires he showed police and Fire Marshal Stackhouse how he piled material in the barns, such as hay and straw, so that the flames would spread well. It was stated that Jankowski seems to know more about the fires mentioned than many of the regular fire inspectors.

Newtown Presbyterians Will Have New Church Plant

NEWTOWN, Apr. 15.—An offer of several thousand dollars on condition that the Presbyterian Church congregation here make up the balance for the building of a new church plant has been accepted.

The decision to meet with the plan to erect the structure at Washington avenue and North Chancellor street was reached at an adjourned meeting of the church.

C. A. Scheuringer, of Heacock & Hockson, Philadelphia architects, has been retained as architect for the new building. Plans submitted by him to the congregation have been accepted.

The congregation appointed a building committee consisting of Rev. J. A. Long, chairman, and Messrs. I. T. Van Arsdale, H. B. Hogeland, Morris Savidge, and David Watson. Work will proceed as soon as the architect can prepare plans and specifications and contracts can be let.

This project comes just at the close of 200 years of continuous service to this community by the Presbyterian Church.

WARN CHILDREN OF DANGER IN STREETS

"With Spring weather luring children to play in the streets, a great responsibility is placed upon motorists and parents, and unless both take proper precautions this year, 1933 is likely to see a repetition of the frightful casualty record that marked 1932."

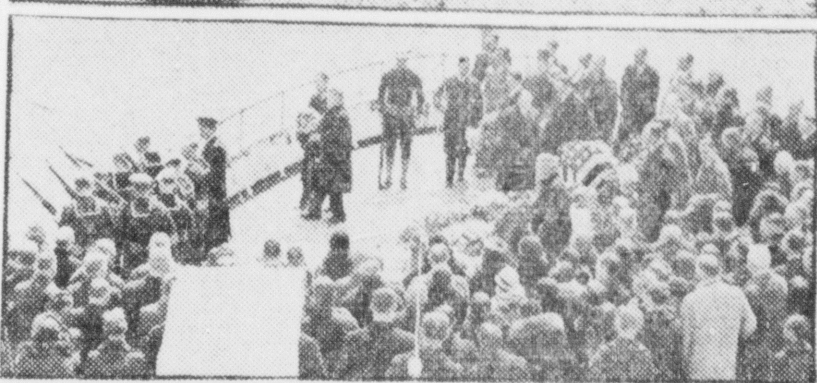

That warning was issued today by the Keystone Automobile Club, backed up by State statistics showing that 349 Pennsylvania children were killed and 7509 injured in the streets last year.

"The records show," said Edward B. Watson, manager of the Bucks county division of the club, "that more than one-third of these accidents occurred while children were playing games on streets and roads heavily traveled by motor vehicles."

"As we see it, responsibility rests first with parents; they cannot be unaware of the danger of unsupervised and unrestricted play in the highways. But failure of parents to keep their children off the streets does not relieve the motorist of the solemn duty to do everything humanly possible to safeguard children thus exposed to traffic perils."

"Our best advice to motorists is to take no chances where children are concerned. The motorist whose record is clear of accidents is the motorist who never assumes that a child is going to keep out of his way. He is prepared for the unexpected, and his cautious operation saves many children from death or injury. Every motorist can enroll in this class of careful drivers. The only qualification is common sense."

Masury, whose ashes were strewn over the waters of the Atlantic, five miles off the Ambrose lightship. ## PREFER BABY'S DEATH TO LIFE OF BLINDNESS

Vasko Family Prepares to Flee
From Home, Fearing
Decision in Case

OPERATION ADVOCATED

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., Apr. 15.—John and Anna Vasko, today took their child away from the law that would compel her to lose an eye in order to save her life. Before dawn they stole from their little house near the railroad tracks, the father carrying Helen, the two-year-old, whose left eye is infected with a cancerous growth that is spreading to her brain.

HASTINGS-ON-HUDSON, N. Y., Apr. 15.—(INS)—Fearing an adverse decision from the Brooklyn Appellate Court, Mrs. Anna Vasko, champion of the doctrine of "death rather than blindness" for her baby daughter, prepared to flee her humble home today to escape both the law and the crowds of curious.

A decision was expected to be handed down by the Brooklyn Court ruling on the legality of an order issued by Judge Smith in Westchester County Children's Court directing that a surgical operation be performed on two-year-old Helen Vasko, over her parents' objections. The operation would remove the baby's left eye, which is affected by a cancerous tumor, but it would save the child's life, the surgeons declare.

Both parents have bitterly opposed the operation, declaring it was better their baby girl died than have her beauty marred by removal of an eye.

As dawn broke over the Hudson the Vasko family was preparing for a hurried departure for a small mining town near Potsville, Pa., where relatives live. There, they hoped, they would be safe, temporarily at least, from the law of New York state, which they fear will take little Helen from them.

Members of the immediate families and friends, who were present, signed the certificate as witnesses.

BRITISH DON'T UNDERSTAND GERMAN

Berlin, Germany, Apr. 15.—The failure of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, to refute charges of German anti-Jewish persecution in the House of Commons, was responsible for the German government's protest over Thursday's debate in the British parliament, it was stated today.

The protest, it was stated, is not directed particularly against speeches made by Sir Austin Chamberlain, former foreign secretary, and Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer, but the remarks of the two former cabinet officers, however, were not greeted with any noticeable degree of welcome in the German press. As a matter of fact, the press's reaction ranged from anxiety and surprise to heated indignation.

One of the most outstanding newspapers was the Boersen Zeitung, which said: "Deeper lack of comprehension of the German and national revolution cannot be found in any nation other than the British Empire. The sources from which the House of Commons takes its spiritual food are those breathing places that systematically poison world opinion with their vile lies and loose insinuations. Sir Austin Chamberlain's words show unparalleled cynicism."

AKRON PROBE TO MOVE TO WASHINGTON

Lakehurst, N. J., Apr. 15.—Without having definitely learned the cause of the Akron's disaster, which took a toll of 73 lives, the Naval Court of Inquiry today occupied itself with cleaning up "loose ends" of its work in Lakehurst before moving on to Washington where the probe will be resumed next week. Today the Court was still engaged in consideration of its investigation of the blimp J-3 accident. The blimp crashed at sea with a loss of two lives while searching for survivors of the Akron on April 4th.

The first four days of this week were devoted to the Akron inquiry. Yesterday was given over to the J-3 investigation. Next week in Washington, probably on Tuesday, the second phase of the Akron probe will be taken up. Only a half dozen witnesses remain to be called in the Akron investigation.

THE CAPITOL WHIRL--HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Apr. 15.—(INS)—A merry scramble for the governorship of Pennsylvania is delayed only by prolonged legislative activities.

Senator John J. McClure, organization leader of Delaware County, was reported to be ready to declare his candidacy as soon as the atmosphere clears at Harrisburg. Asked about the report, Senator McClure told International News Service:

"I'm not a candidate for Governor. I'm too busy thinking about legislation here to be a candidate for anything now."

Political observers were puzzled by the report, anyhow. It would be news if McClure has won the backing of other organization leaders, including William S. Vare. It would be bigger news, perhaps, if McClure has broken with some of them.

There is no evidence that Gen. Edward Martin, Republican State Committee chairman, has yielded an open track to the Delaware senator. Martin never said he was a candidate for gov-

URGE RESIDENTS TO REMOVE DEBRIS FROM ALL PREMISES

Clean-Up Week To Be Observed Here During Next Week

CLEAN ALL CELLARS

Put Debris and Rubbish Out
On Regular Collection
Days

Monday is the beginning of clean-up week throughout the State, and Superintendent of Public Safety James L. McGee and the local health authorities are anxious that it be observed here.

Clean-up week is an annual custom which has always resulted in developing a borough-wide interest in sanitation and the removal of nuisances and fire hazards.

Residents of Bristol are again urged to co-operate with the various departments of the borough government in the observance of these activities.

Clean all premises of all debris and place it at the curb line on the specified day on which ash and rubbish collections are made, and in this way have all such debris removed from the properties.

The following is suggested merely as a general guide for this observance.

Monday.—All sidewalks and streets should be cleaned, gutters cleared, ditches opened and sewers flushed.

Tuesday.—Leaves, briars, brush and dead grass should be cleaned away from roadsides and from around homes.

Wednesday.—All cesspools should be cleaned and lined. Water holes should be filled, spouting mended and garbage cans thoroughly cleaned and scoured.

Thursday.—The accumulation of junk and trash, particularly in attics and cellars, consisting of old books, papers, clothes, rags, bottles, cans and ashes should be removed. In addition, cellars should be thoroughly cleaned and whitewashed.

The removal of filth and debris from yards, and the proper protection of garbage will do much to eliminate the fly hazard. Coupled with adequate screening of windows and doors and the free and constant use of fly swatters, the health menace represented by this insect can be materially reduced.

It should be remembered that the time to fight the fly is upon its first appearance. There should be no let-up throughout the summer.

An effective way to prevent fires is by removing fire hazards. A hazard is any property which by reason of its condition or operation may cause or aggravate fires. By cleaning up these hazards fires may be prevented.

Eighty percent of the fire loss in Pennsylvania, entailing a yearly average of 1,000 persons killed and injured and the destruction of property worth approximately $27,000,000 is preventable. This appalling toll from fire is mainly the result of carelessness, indifference and neglect in permitting and allowing the combination of circumstances to occur and develop that invite and accelerate fire.

The enormous fire loss can be controlled and very much curtailed by careful practices and considerate action in the disposing of and removing waste accumulations in and about buildings; thoughtfulness in disposing or discarding lighted cigarettes, cigars and matches; avoiding the use of gasoline and other volatile flammable liquids for cleaning purposes in the home and for starting fires; repairing or correcting defective stoves, furnaces and flues; remedying defective electric wiring and avoiding the misuse of electricity, and by acquiring a sense of fire consciousness in the daily tasks. These are a few indications of the numerous combinations that cause fire.

A little care exercised in these examples and in other instances where thoughtful action should prevail, will make the home comparatively safe from fire and afford protection to the occupants. The usual spring clean-up will doubtless bring to observation some conditions that will indicate their hazard. Correct or remove them at once, because the continuance thereof may be brought forcibly and sadly to your attention later by the visitation of fire.

Out-of-the-way storage rooms, cellars, attics, and all other places where materials not in daily use are kept, are undoubtedly dust catchers and perhaps contributory fire hazards. These places should be inspected during the week as to the possible presence of trash, oily rags, waste paper or other inflammable materials.

EASTER AND SPRING

One cannot dissociate Easter and spring, no matter how early or late the religious festival may come nor how unseasonable the weather attending its advent. Easter is spring and life is reborn.

The dead days are past and the requiem of winter is forgotten as the birds sing the resurrection of nature. The poet sighs, the sun smiles, perhaps, and the woman with a new spring hat looks anxiously at the meteorological emanations from the shrine on Olympus which the irreverent flippantly call the weather works. Enveloping and hallowing it all is the atmosphere that sends the soul journeying beside still waters, through peaceful valleys, soft grasses and awakening buds and soothing it with imaginary scents of flowers awaiting only warmth to spread their sweetness on a newly-aroused world.

Besides its religious meaning, that is the spirit and significance of Easter and it is older even than the Christian religion. The display of colors and raiment in unison with the earth throwing off its old garments is as ancient as the race. Man always has wanted to sing as soon as the birds did and he has done so. Even the Bible has its beautiful poetic allusions to spring, and the vernal festivals of ancient days were a public expression of the song that was in the hearts of the people as a whole.

We do not have anything we did not inherit, so it is not strange that a woman wants a pretty hat at Easter time. As a matter of fact it would be strange if she did not. And it is not to be expected that poets will quit caroling about spring as long as nature sends winters that inspire poets to say "Oh, wind, if winter comes, can spring be far behind?"

VERDICT BEING GIVEN

The intoxicating or non-intoxicating qualities of the new beer was a question of prime public interest on the eve of the new law's going into effect. Recognized and supposed experts differed among themselves on the point. Some maintained the new brew would pack the same kick that the pre-Volstead product harbored. Others denied this and gave 3.2 no more potency than a soft drink has.

The actual decision of the case, therefore, was left to the great body of beer drinkers.

The opportunity for this to be forthcoming has been given. The beverage has been on sale in many of the larger and smaller cities for 10 days. Celebrations marked its arrival, and the initial enthusiasm that greeted it has cooled very little. In no reports from any cities, though, have we noted anything indicating that the inhibitors reached a stage of intoxication. Some cities have reported a decrease in drunkenness since the 3.2 went on sale.

The celebrations in most places were orderly. The drinkers seem to have exercised admirable restraint or else 3.2 is what Congress contended it would be—a non-intoxicating drink.

More happiness is found accidentally than on purpose.

Life is that way, too. You're usually advanced to second and third, but getting to first is your own job.

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, young and comely orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy young business man. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, handsome young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Kim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim starts Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. She asks them to take back their presents. After working late, Mark Nesbit takes Mary Faith to dinner and home to her boarding house in his car. Slowly Mary Faith learns to live her life without Kim. When Mark Nesbit injures his ankle, Mary Faith is driven to his country home to take dictation. She meets his mother and enjoys the charming home life of the Nesbits. Jean Bartlett, Mary Faith's office friend, laughingly tells her she should marry Mark Nesbit. Mark, now back at the office, asks Mary Faith to help him select a ring for his sister. In the store she sees Kim Farrell. Kim, standing with a girl, approaches Mary Faith. She greets him casually. Driving home, Mark Nesbit tells Mary Faith he loves her. She informs him of her broken engagement to Kim Farrell, and that she will never again love anyone. Mrs. Puckett, Mary Faith's landlady, chides Mary Faith on her romance with the wealthy Mark Nesbit.

CHAPTER XXII

She sat there thinking things out. . . . Of course her job was gone. It would be impossible to go back to Nesbit's after today. That was certain.

It was also certain that it would be a long time before she found another position that was as good and paid as well.

"If you and Mr. Nesbit had words, how did it happen that he brought you home in his car?" the voice of Mrs. Puckett cut across her thoughts.

"Dinner's served, ma'am," said Agnes from the doorway.

But Mrs. Puckett had made up her mind to get an answer to her question. After dinner she came lumbering up the stairs to Mary Faith's room.

"I've been putting two and two together," she said, sitting down heavily on the side of the bed. "And I've made up my mind that that man asked you to marry him—or, at least, he tried to make love to you, didn't he?"

Mary Faith was sitting at her dressing table, polishing her nails. She bent her head lower over them.

"He did ask me to marry him."

Mrs. Puckett threw her plump hands into the air. "I knew it!" she said quickly. "I knew it! And you turned him down?"

Mary Faith nodded.

"Well, all the fools aren't dead yet it seems," Mrs. Puckett groaned. "Mary Faith, let me give you some advice. . . . You go down to that office in the morning and tell that man you've changed your mind. Tell him you'll marry him and have something in your life besides a dirty office all day long and a boarding house full of funny people to come home to at night! And you'd better get down on your knees this minute and pray to heaven that he doesn't change his mind about you overnight!"

It was the first time in her life that she had ever spoken of her house as anything but a family hotel and a first-class one, at that. There was a sparkle of tears behind her steel-rimmed glasses and her old chin worked.

"It's Mr. Farrell, ma'am. Mr. Farrell that used to come to see you, you know." Agnes was smiling. She had always liked Kim and given him extra portions of cream and dessert when he came to the house for meals.

"Close the door, Agnes, and wait there in the hall for a minute."

It was Mrs. Puckett who spoke.

"So he's turned up again like a bad penny—just at the wrong time," she said in a half whisper as soon as the door had closed upon Agnes. "I wouldn't see him if I were you. Mary Faith. Don't think that I don't know how he's treated you, because I do. I know he threw you overboard three months ago, not caring what happened to you! And now that you're on your feet again and have a chance to marry a man with money and position, back he comes to make you miserable again! . . . Let me go down and tell him you're never going to see him again."

Mary Faith shook her head. Her face had gone dead white and her eyes were like blue-black water.

"I'm going down," she said, and she went.

Kim was waiting for her at the foot of the stairs. His fur-collared overcoat was on the hall table, and he was turning and twisting his hat in his hands as he watched her come down the last flight of steps.

Her heart seemed to be beating all over her body and there was a singing in her ears; but she greeted him casually as if she had been seeing him every night for months.

"Hello, Kim."

"Get your coat," he said. "Get your hat and coat. I want you to go for a drive."

Her wraps hung on the hall rack where she had put them before dinner while Miss Halperin was using her room. She took them down and put them on with hands that were shaking.

"All right, Kim, I'm ready."

The minute the front door had closed upon them he burst forth: "Mary Faith, I've been like a crazy man for the last three hours! To see you walk into that store and let that fellow buy a ring for you! To see my girl with another man! Good Lord, I couldn't stand it. Mary Faith!"

He opened the door of his little car and they got into it. They sat there looking at each other in the flickering radiance of the street lamp that stood in front of Mrs. Puckett's house.

"I wore your ring for a good many years, Kim. I wore it until you took it away from me," Mary Faith said quietly.

He nodded, his hands pressed to his temples. "I know—I know. Don't talk to me about it. Don't tell me what a fool I was."

Suddenly he dropped his hands from his face and caught Mary Faith by her wrists.

"You can believe me or not, but I love you more this minute than I ever did in my life before."

"Only because you think I'm someone else's," Mary Faith answered him. "You haven't wanted to see me for three months, Kim. You've been perfectly happy with that girl. You were perfectly happy with her tonight in that store where you were buying her a mesh bag."

Her pulses were still now, and she could think clearly once again.

"You're what Mrs. Puckett would call a dog in the manger," she said. "You don't want me, yourself, and you don't want anybody else to have me."

"You don't care for that fellow," he said in a muffled voice. "You couldn't have forgotten all about me in just a few weeks. You aren't like that, Mary Faith. And even if he's given you the biggest diamond in Armbruster's store, you're still my girl."

Mary Faith clasped and unclasped her ringless hands.

"I wore your diamond for a long time, Kim," she reminded him; "and I'd still be wearing it if you hadn't taken it away from me—because of that girl."

"Now, let's not talk about her!" he said irritably. "She doesn't mean a thing in my life any more, and she knows it. I haven't seen her more than three or four times in the last month. I haven't seen anybody—I've been restless and down in the dumps for a long time. But I didn't know what ailed me until you came walking into Armbruster's tonight with that fellow. Then I knew I'd been missing you all the time."

He lifted his blond head and looked at her. The light from the street lamp shone into his face. He was anxious and grave, very unlike his usual debonaire self.

"Lord, if you only knew what I've been through the last three hours!" he said, shaking his head. "I'd asked Janet to have dinner with me, and I had to go through with it. I sat there looking at her and thinking of you. . . . Mary Faith, you've got to take me back. You've got to believe I love you."

She did believe him. She could see that he really had been suffering for three hours as she had suffered for three months. And pity and tenderness welled up in her all at once so that it was hard for her to speak.

"Kim, listen to me—I'm not engaged to Mark Nesbit. That ring we were picking out wasn't a ring for me but a Christmas present for his sister, Judith. I've never thought of marrying anybody but you. I've never cared for anyone else—and if you never had come back to me I'd probably have spent my whole life right here in River Street, waiting for you!"

She gave a shaky little laugh. "You know it too. That's the worst of it, Kim. You're too sure of me."

He shook his head. "No, I'm not sure of you," he said; "and that's why I've made up my mind to marry you tomorrow."

He put his arms around her and pulled her close to him. He pressed back her head with one swift hand and his face came down over hers, blotting out the stars, as he kissed her.

It seemed to Mary Faith then that she must have known all along that Kim would come back to her like this.

She thought, "If I hadn't known it I couldn't have gone on the way I have."

"I haven't had any vacation this year," Kim said presently, "so the firm probably won't kick if I take a couple of weeks now for a honeymoon. . . . I'll drive around here for you at ten tomorrow morning and we'll go downtown for the license. You can have some things packed and be ready to leave then, can't you?"

Mary Faith nodded dreamily, her cheek against his. She wondered if he realized the power he had over her. The power to bend her will to his in small things as well as big important ones. He had had that power the first night she ever saw him across the tables in Mrs. Puckett's dining room when he had made her break an engagement for the next night and make one with him instead.

He had that power now as he sat beside her, planning her life for her. He would always have it.

PAY UP—CHEER UP!

OUR SMALL LOAN SERVICE WILL HELP YOU DO BOTH

Often when persons begin to feel a little "blue" over their financial affairs, they take courage and "come through" if they can get temporary assistance.

The business man may secure a loan from a bank to pay his debtors and "ride him over" until he is able to "get on his feet again." This loan helps him greatly and he is soon in a position to repay the bank.

Likewise a small loan to householders is the means of helping them meet an emergency, calling for money to pay bills, rent, taxes, and interest on their home, building and loan dues, for sickness, and other needs.

GO TO CHURCH Easter Sunday and Every Sunday in the Year

"REJOICE in the Lord always, and again I say, rejoice!" St. Paul's words will find glad echo on Easter Sunday; for millions will come from out the tombs of passion, pride, doubt or despair into the sunlight of a new morning.

As Christ triumphed over death, so our faith will conquer temptations and trials. We will come closer to Christ; we will hear His message proclaimed from our pulpits, and we will realize anew the spiritual benefits of church attendance on Easter Sunday and every Sunday. When all denominations teach the glory of God, what matters it where we attend church, AS LONG AS WE ATTEND? So in whatever Bristol Church we worship this year, the Easter lilies will be taken from the altar and transplanted into the hearts of men, there to bloom permanently.

YOUNG TERRY READY TO MEET CHICK DEVLIN

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 15.—The most important middleweight battle to be held in Trenton for over a year is slated for ten rounds at the Trenton Armory Monday night. Young Terry, Trenton buzz-saw, and the leading contender for middleweight honors, will clash with Chick Devlin of California, the warrior who beat him in a Madison Square Garden wind-up almost 12 months ago.

This will mark the first time that a feature bout at the high temple of fistiana will receive its encore in the Capital City. Terry defeated Ben Jeby, who subsequently decided Devlin, to win the middleweight crown as interpreted by the New York State Athletic Commission. The Trentonian is now after another shot at Jeby and must hurdle the Devlin obstacle to achieve the goal. Chick, a slashing, two-fisted puncher from the West, battled the hard-punching Frank Battaglia and Gorilla Jones to a draw. He defeated Vincent Serici and Benny Miller among other leading middleweights.

Terry holds wins over Jackie Fields, Jimmy Smith, Joe Reno, Marty Sampson, Jack Rosenberg and many others.

This event marks the most important promotional endeavor of Sammy Perro, erstwhile pilot of Terry and now boxing promoter.

Tommy Rios, clever Mexican boxer, who boxed Johnny Oakie to a draw here and lost a close decision to Terry is slated for the eight-round semi-wind-up against Benny Levine of Newark. Levine is the youngster who stopped the plunging Hans Mueller in Newark several weeks ago.

Three other high class bouts complete the card.

Down the Bowling Alleys

YOUTH SHOOTS STEPFATHER

South Merchantville, N. J., Apr. 15.—A 17 year old youth early today shot his stepfather in the back with a small calibre rifle when the man attempted to choke his mother, according to police. The youth, Viggo Sorenson, told police his stepfather, Joseph Green, 58, had been drinking heavily for the past two days and returned home early this morning. He said he was awakened by the screams of his mother, Mary, 52, and rushed downstairs to find Green choking the woman and pushing her against the kitchen wall.

"I'm sorry I had to do it, but I'd do it again if the same thing happened," he told police. Physicians did not immediately ascertain the seriousness of the wound.

VIOLENT DEMONSTRATION

Tokyo, Apr. 15.—A new violent demonstration against the General Electric Company of Japan, a subsidiary of the American combine, occurred today when a group of rioters attempted to wreck the company's show room on the "Ginza," Tokyo's "Broadway." Police dispersed the rioters before any damage was done, seizing three alleged ring leaders. A heavy guard was assigned to the huge General Electric factory.

The Capitol Whirl

Justice Keplart, of the State Supreme Court, the stories persist, is seriously contemplating a fling at the governorship. Like some others, though, he is believed wanting in support from some factions. Then there are Lieut. Gov. E. C. Shannon and others.

Speculation that Attorney General William A. Schnader may seek the nomination continues to make him the subject of facetious exchanges.

At a recent press conference, Schnader sat to the left of the Governor in a chair used by a former chief executive. During the informal conversation, some one inquired if he intended two years hence to substitute that chair for the one used by Governor Pinchot.

"I couldn't say that," Schnader smilingly replied.

The Democratic party is being reckoned with very seriously in the gubernatorial battle. Leaders are more confident than they have been in half a generation. Withall, they apparently have not yet put their finger on any candidate. It still appears to be an open field. Numerically the timber is not as great or the contention as strong as on the G. O. P. side.

They have a financial disadvantage, it is admitted. At least the "angel" has not yet put in an appearance. Sedgwick Kistler, of Lock Haven, until nearly a year ago was the big contributor. But since November he appears to have been shuffled out of the new deal.

John M. Hemphill, who endangered the Republican cause four years ago, is not considered a possibility now. At the moment, President Judge William S. McLean, Jr., of the Luzerne County Court is mentioned more frequently than anybody else on the minority side. His own attitude is not generally known.

Many political students believe there is nothing to prevent E. J. Lynett from becoming the nominee, except himself. It would not be the first time that the Scranton publisher declined high honors extended by his party.

Lawrence H. Rupp, Allentown lawyer who came dangerously close—dangerously for Pennsylvania—to taking the U. S. senatorial election from James J. Davis last November, stands in a fair way of being the Democratic choice, it is believed.

Rupp's attitude, however, is understood to be such that the very most he would do is consent to run upon request—and right now there is no assurance of that, either. In other words, Rupp is not looked upon as likely to take the initiative.

Senator Henry L. Snyder, Lehigh County, might have eliminated himself from the speculation with his announcement that he is through with politics when his present term ends. But he hasn't—at least not in the minds of some at the Capitol.

Joseph Guffey, Roosevelt leader, is on record with the statement he is not candidate for any job, and Rep. Chester H. Rhodes, Monroe, has not given any encouragement to reports that he is interested in running for Governor. It would not surprise well-informed political circles if Rep. Rhodes became a candidate for State Senator.
